Individual cremation service

Our promise to you

We take great care to ensure that your beloved pet is cremated entirely on its own with the upmost dignity. By entrusting your pet to CPC, the ashes of your companion and only your companion, will be returned to you.

Bringing your pet to CPC

Many people choose to leave their companion in the care of their veterinary practice, from where we will collect their pet for individual cremation. Alternatively, you are most welcome to bring your companion to the crematorium yourself, by appointment, to say your final farewell.

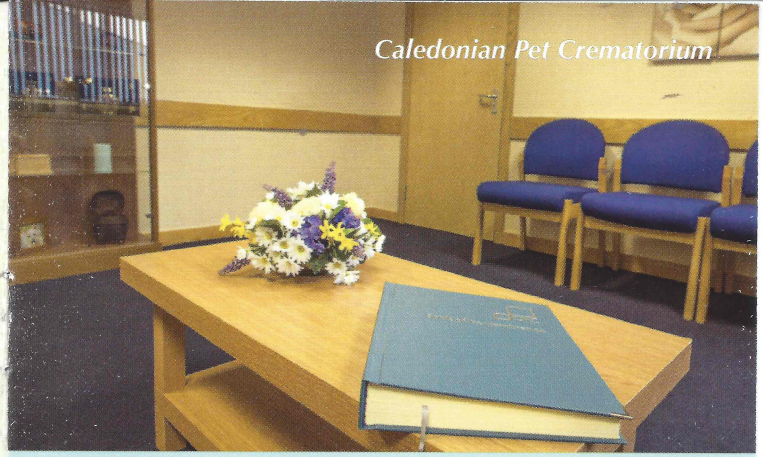
Returning your pet's ashes

Your pet's ashes will be securely packaged, in a casket or urn of your choice, and returned to your veterinary practice or directly to your home depending on your wishes. Along with your companion's ashes, you will receive a sympathy card, signed on behalf of CPC, which confirms details of the individual cremation.

Making the final arrangements

In most cases, your veterinary practice will organise the final arrangements on your behalf with the crematorium. However, if you have been asked to contact the crematorium directly to make arrangements, our bereavement advisors will help you select a casket, confirm if you would like to attend your pet's cremation and arrange payment.

"Everything that you did for my beloved dog was excellent. I am so overwhelmed and pleased with the service you provided for my beloved dog Shadow. You have done him proud and I'm so grateful for that. Many thanks."
Nicola George



Final farewell at the crematorium

You and your family are welcome to attend the cremation of your companion, by prior appointment, to say goodbye in the comfort of our farewell suite.

On arrival at the crematorium, you will be greeted by a bereavement advisor who will guide you throughout the service, and be on-hand to provide you with support.

Once you have said your final goodbye, you might like to witness your pet's cremation. For those who would find this option reassuring and beneficial, a monitor will enable further viewing of the cremation service.

After the cremation, you may wish to take your companion's ashes home with you on the day.

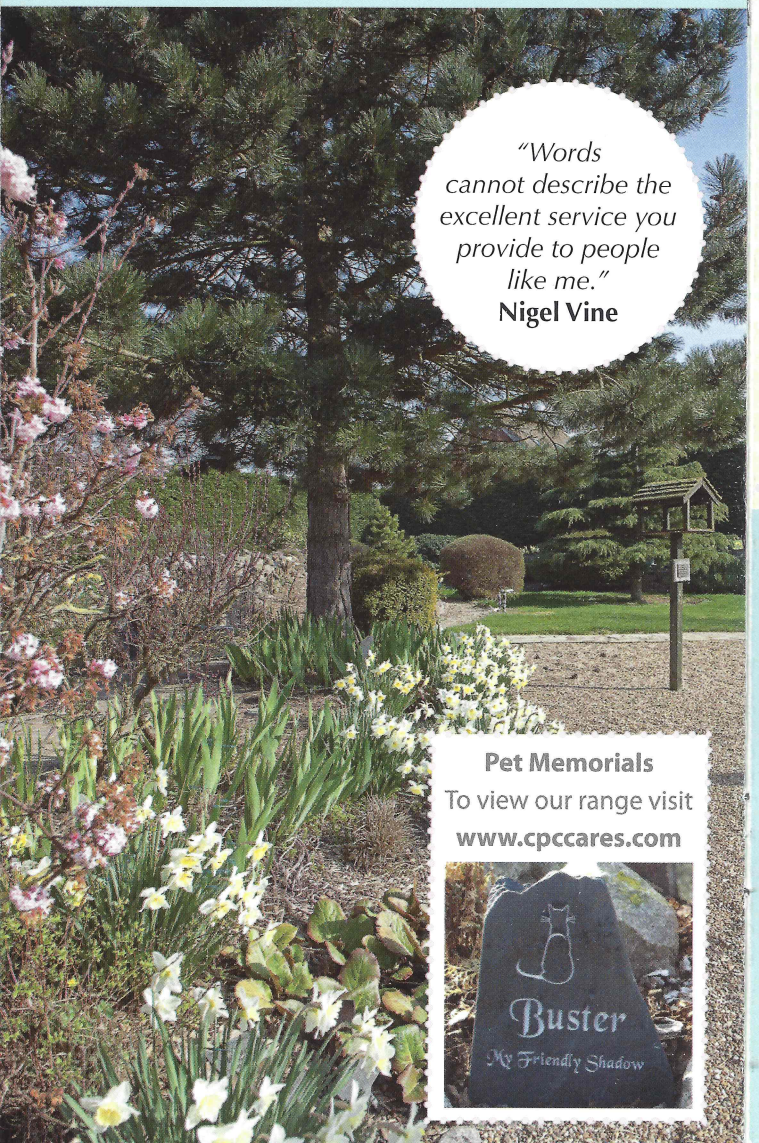
Michael Read

Garden of remembrance

Commemorating the lives of much-loved pets, CPC's garden of remembrance contains columbariums, as well as individual and communal plots. Located at Cambridge Pet Crematorium, the garden welcomes visitors throughout the year. Many people choose to have their pet's ashes interred or scattered in this peaceful place.



"Words cannot describe the excellent service you provide to people like me."
Nigel Vine

Communal cremation

Your companion will be cremated alongside other pets. Token ash is placed into a casket. This casket is then stored in a columbarium, where the fascia tablet is inscribed with the relevant month's cremation dates. If you choose this service, no ashes will be returned to you.

For those who would like further reassurance, our communal plus service offers you certification of your pet's communal cremation. Please inform your vet of your wishes.

Books of remembrance

When visiting any one of our crematoria, you can share your memories and draw comfort from our books of remembrance. Alternatively, you can leave an online tribute at www.cpccares.com.

Saying goodbye

When facing the loss of a much-loved pet, you may experience a range of emotions, testimony to the special bond between you and your pet. Talking to someone about how you feel can bring comfort. The Pet Bereavement Support Service offer confidential support and can be contacted on 0800 096 6606. Reminiscing about your pet, writing a poem or putting together a photograph album are ways you can express your feelings.

Please remember that nobody knows your pet better than you and the people closest to you. Do talk and share how you are feeling with your friends and family.

At CPC, we care

Each companion that comes into our lives and fills our hearts with warmth deserves to be remembered.

We understand the special bond between you and your pet, which is why we extend our hand to you with kindness and compassion. As one of the oldest family-run pet crematoria, CPC cares and respects your individual needs as a bereaved pet owner. Performing our first individual cremation in 1981, you can be assured that all aspects of our service are carried out with dignity and to the highest standard.
